Banish Pain

THERE is no use talking—no one can work or play when they are not feeling well and strong. Life, without health and strength, is a mere painful, pleasureless existence.

One of the most important conditions of good health is to keep the kidneys normal and active. When weak or damaged, they do not filter out of the blood the impurities that should be eliminated from the system. When these impurities remain, the blood stream is poisoned and pain and suffering result.

W. R. Fox, 195 W. Washington St., Noblesville, Ind., writes: "After suffering many months with kidney trouble, and after having tried other remedies for the same, I purchased a bottle of Foley Kidney Pills and took them. They not only did me more good than any other kidney remedies I ever have used, but they positively set my kidneys right. Other members of my family have used them with similar results. ELITE ORDERS PROVIDED FOR SAFETY OF AVIATORS

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Coincident with the starting of the first trans-Atlantic air race, the navy department has issued an order, dated April 15, which governs the action of every aircraft and naval vessel connected with the long flight and provides against almost every possible emergency which may arise during the actual voyage.

Complete in every detail, the order provides for the stationing and subsequent movements of destroyers, four battleships and a number of auxiliary vessels in connection with the flight. Although the fleet is to be a month prior to the actual start of the hazardous journey, the details of the order have been followed without the least hitch throughout the project.

Ribbon of Ships.
In accordance with the provisions of the department's order, the route which the seaplanes are to take to the Azores is marked by a ribbon of destroyers stationed about 50 miles apart. These vessels have been on their stations since the beginning of the month. In addition to the destroyers, four battleships, the Florida, Utah, Texas and Wyoming, have been stationed on the outskirts of the course to furnish further meteorological data throughout the flight.

All of the intricate details of radio communication between the various units have been worked out carefully. As provided in the order, the seaplanes are in constant communication with the naval vessels at all times. Every precaution has been taken to safeguard the flyers in the event of an emergency. The route is provided with special illuminating torches, star shells and flares for use at night to mark the course and are in constant readiness to answer S. O. S. calls or other distress signals.

Twenty-one destroyers are stationed on the Trepassey-Azores leg, with four additional vessels in reserve to replace any craft which may be called upon to answer an S. O. S. signal, or itself become disabled. As the seaplanes pass above a destroyer the latter obtains a radio communication, ascertains the condition of the planes and transmits the true course to the next vessel.

Lighted Brilliantly.
During the night the destroyers on stations 1 to 18 will keep brilliantly illuminated to provide against the seaplanes mistaking a ship and thus losing the way. To guard further against this contingency the destroyers are ordered in the event the seaplanes have not been sighted at the approximate time they should arrive, to make smoke clouds show searchlights and flares and notify the next ship to the westward. The next vessel in line will make the same signals and the course of an hour before the planes are due to arrive.

Upon being notified that a destroyer is engaged in the trans-Atlantic flight or not, it is ordered to signal to the plane the duty it is on and, if desired, the true course to the next vessel on station. All ships in the vicinity are instructed to proceed with all possible speed in answer to S. O. S. calls and to make every effort to assist in the event the disabled plane can not proceed and conditions make towing it back to the base hazardous or impossible. The destroyer is instructed to rescue the crew and to salvage all parts of the plane possible.

In the event that the seaplanes leave Trepassey, the battleships Utah and Florida are to proceed back to this country. The Texas and Wyoming will continue observations until the planes reach the Azores, but will send reports to the base ship, Mobile, at Ponta Delgada. The battleship Arkansas, which has been at Plymouth, England, immediately upon receiving word that the flight from Trepassey had started, proceeded to take station between the Azores and Liberia for meteorological conditions for the fourth leg of the long flight.

The planes are following a mercator's course from Mistaken Point, on Trepanco Bay to Azores, Landfall at the Azores, and thence by the shortest route to Ponta Delgada. There they will refuel, make necessary repairs and start as soon as possible for Lisbon. Departing from Lisbon in the early morning the flyers are ordered to head for Plymouth, the objective point of the long voyage.

BAKER FAVORING ARMY TRAINING

Will Soon Announce Stand for Universal Military Schooling.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Secretary Baker is expected soon to make a public announcement of a definite stand in favor of universal educational military training, with a statement of his reasons. It is assumed that President Wilson has approved his plan. Secretary Baker's plan is understood to contemplate the use of the military establishment as a medium for training the youth of the nation, first along academic and vocational lines, and then, entirely separate and subordinate feature, in rudimentary military science. The secretary's suggested program is said to be based initially on the benefits which will accrue to the country from the higher average of intelligence and the improved standard of physical well-being of the young men.

FIRST EARLY PEACHES GREEN, BUT BLUSHING
The first peaches of the season have arrived in Memphis. They are very green to city ways, but those placed on the market Saturday managed to get up a few blushes on at least one cheek. Persons who like new creamed peaches had them on sale, but even in these days of high prices the cost, which is a small amount, is not enough to induce any bargain counter rush on the part of purchasers. Those in the market came from Georgia.

The retail cost of strawberries remains about at the 25-cent level, and if commission men are to be believed the crop is really short and prices will not be much lower all season. Persons who like new creamed peaches can have them if they care to pay the prevailing price, which ranges from 8 to 12 cents a pound. Grocers say new arrivals are scarce, but point to the fact that if patrons don't care to consume so much, old peaches are much cheaper.

The class was the largest ever initiated at one time in any Southern city, and the visiting nobles from the temples from Chicago to New Orleans attended.

For 15 years or more the Dallas Avenue Baptist church had the largest membership in the Liberty Baptist association.
